Investing in the Future

Gunther Training: Knowledge is power.

Increased Efficiencies through Training

Making the investment in high integrity Gunther inserters is just the first step to mailing business efficiency and productivity. Investing in the operators that will run them is the second. Ensuring that they fully understand the machinery and the processes is the best way to maximize uptime and throughput at all times.

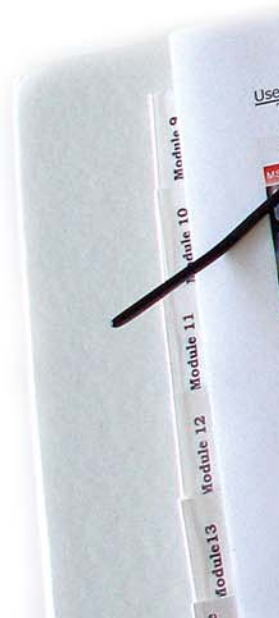

Gunther's Training Programs are highly effective methods for bringing your operators to a skill level in which they are fully aware of their actions at all times, and can respond effectively to any situation in order to capitalize on Gunther's advanced mailing solutions.

The benefits are simple – higher productivity, a reduction in unforeseen maintenance activities and a more motivated and effective operator.

There are 3 levels of ongoing professional training available; each course designed to familiarize operators with system operations of increasing complexity, improve problem resolution skills and increase the operator's familiarity with the Gunther system.

“Your Greatest Asset Is Your People”

With three steadily increasing levels of knowledge, you can choose how much expertise you need to give your operators based on your specific business needs. And as each level builds on the previous one, it shows a steadily increasing commitment to the operator, keeping them motivated and loyal. Rewarding them with steadily increasing levels of training and trust lets them know they are valued, increasing their personal ownership in the equipment, the process and the company.

Bronze

A three day course, Bronze training is the essential level of operator knowledge. Building on the theory of operation and control, this hands-on course enables the user to set-up and run the Gunther inserter and to perform basic error resolution together with the necessary day to day cleaning and maintenance activities.

- Operational theory and set-up
- Handling and loading of materials
- Basic adjustments
- System error resolution
- Daily cleaning and maintenance

Silver

Preceded by Bronze training, Silver takes the knowledge and expertise already gained and develops it in a two day course. Focusing on providing a greater understanding for operational adjustments and more advanced setup activities, Silver training gives the operator the skills necessary to make your Gunther machine run at peak performance.

- Brief review of Bronze Level Training
- Adjustment and alignment of sensors
- Identification of potential problem areas
- Modifications to job set-up screens
- Feeder reassignment

Gold

With Bronze and Silver training under the operator's belt, Gunther's Gold Level, creates a highly trained individual who is capable of advanced and sophisticated operations plus essential repairs. This two day course gives the operator superior knowledge and is the best way to increase efficiencies and optimize throughput.

- Brief review of Silver Level Training
- Advanced job set-up screen changes
- Use of system error reporting
- Identification and adjustment for inconsistent or poor quality materials
- Manipulation of primary barcode data

Certification Program

Gunther also offers a comprehensive certification program for trained operators. A Gunther Trained Specialist conducts certification on-site, assessing competency and identifies weaknesses in all areas of operation, including safety, job set-up, loading of materials, job processing, error recovery, adjustments and operator-level maintenance.
